Anderson is my town.—Col. A. B. Andrews.

The worst thing about the tango is its cheap name.

There is something doing in Anderson every day. Watch.

Chief Jackson is a natural born Stonewall when it comes to fire fighting.

John Barleycorn does the "hesitation" beautifully. And winds up with a gavotte.

We expect to put as much of our cotton as they can handle in one of the new warehouses.

When we see the paved streets of other cities, how we long for something of that kind here.

If we have a great white way here, let's not trail along behind other towns but start something new.

At that Anderson has better street cars than Greenville. And as for Spartanburg's car, oil, stinks.

Ford, the automobile man, beat the income tax—by giving away $10,000,000 to his employees before the tax was due.

We trust that the teachers of the county will enjoy their visit to Spartanburg. Such trips are improving and stimulating.

The war scares are said to emanate usually from powder mills or manufacturers of cannon. Exterminate the cause.

Commissioner Watson has the thanks of his office for a copy of his new map of the highways and railroads of the state.

For all the good they do you wish they get into office, it is just about as sensible to put the candidates names into a hat and draw.

The Piedmont and Northern surely has been good to Greenville. For Greenville was good to them. Reciprocity and gratitude.

Some railroad presidents are now of the opinion that they are bigger than the United States government. They have had Woodrowism put to them.

Three farmers are to be added to the distributary of the Duke warehouse proposition. One of them should come from Anderson, the real home of cotton producers.

We believe the state will be spared a mean campaign this summer. Things are much less intense now than they were this time two years ago. May the best men win.

We cannot understand why Woodrow Wilson would let any foreign literate come in here when we now have over two and a quarter million. Some say it is because he has a Roman Catholic secretary.

Just as the state teachers' association was about to reach Spartanburg, Mayor John Floyd closed out a big social club. Didn't wish the visitors to see his pretty child with a dirty face.

Billy Sunday is "fighting Old Nick" in his favorite haunts—New York city. That might be the biggest hell on earth. But there are some little concentrated ones that Billy Sunday might not know of.

SOMEBODY START IT

Some time ago The Daily Intelligencer undertook to find out the sentiment of the community with reference to the commission form of government. As it appeared to be so nearly unanimous we had to give our time to other things requiring our attention. It seems that everybody in Anderson who has studied the proposition with reference to our particular conditions and has observed the workings of the system in other cities is very much impressed with the fact that it will be a great thing for Anderson.

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce have offered their services to city council, to put into effect any step necessary to get a vote on the proposition. We understand that, perhaps without exception, the members of city council favor it. Therefore we ask why should not some one take up the proposition and put it through? Let's give the people a chance to accept it before candidates for municipal offices begin to announce themselves. Let us divorce the proposition from politics and have it discussed and settled on its merits. Spartanburg has it, Sumter has it, Orangeburg has it. All are satisfied. Why should not Anderson go a head with it? There is a general law on the statute books which will let Anderson in.

DR. J. W. BABCOCK

What is more affecting than to see the mind that is sick? Other kinds of illness may be treated with remedies of one kind and another, but the mind is so delicate in its balances, so sensitive in its chemical components, so fragile in its whole, that the burden of restoring life and health to the brain, as the seat of the mind, should be entrusted to those who know and feel. The mind that is sick needs succor—the strength of a vigorous, vitalizing, revivifying personality.

As the blacksmith is not fit to repair the delicate mechanism of an automobile, as the house painter is unfit to re-touch the fading masterpiece of a Rafael, as the builder of streets is not fit to carve the almost intangible traceries of immortal statuary, so is the unsympathetic, untutored and unskilled doctor unfit to treat diseases of the mind. This requires the training of years. This requires the sympathy of a great heart and of a comprehensive mind. This requires the time of one devoted to this particular work, one whose heart senses the needs of suffering humanity and responds eagerly to apply the soothing restorative of medicine's healing alchemy, given in love and administered for the good of all mankind.

The will is the highest and most essential of all mental faculties, and society at large is interested in the saving of persons who are but temporarily and emotionally out of balance because of fever or other disturbance or from overwork. All forms of insanity are distinguished by lessened control. Alcohol is said to cause about 30 per cent of the insanity.

For exciting or depressing or exhausting employment is also a cause of much insanity. What it is to be done in a case of this kind? Shall the victim of heredity or of circumstances be regarded as an outcast and treated with an indifference that is murderous in its cruelty or shall the curable be cured?

Little more than 100 years ago an unfortunate person of this type was regarded as a maniac, as a criminal, as an offender against society, rather than as a poor unfortunate to whom the unseeing world really owes more because of the struggle or heredity which might have caused this temporary derangement. Rest, sympathy, the intuitive understanding of a kind-souled physician, and of tenderly appreciative nurses, these are the restoratives which do the most to quiet and make well the rocking, tottering mind, unbalanced but not by any means lost.

The places of confinement of the insane in the days 100 years ago were looked upon as the proper jails for wretched persons. But upon the idea of curing these poor, sick minds took hold and the insane were treated in hospitals where they were in many instances restored to sanity, to citizenship, and to Great God above.

In Dr. J. W. Babcock there was at the head of South Carolina's hospital and home for the insane a man of forty thousand heart power. A man of brain and of skill and of love for the wretched and the ill. He was known far and wide as a scientist, as a seeker after more and more knowledge of the hidden mysteries of the human mind and of the power to heal the brain's places where the brain's sore ad ill needed the treatment of intelligent hands.

standing. The rate of recovery from insanity these days is more than 40 per cent. The South Carolina Hospital has kept above the standard, we believe. Dr. Babcock was more than a business manager. He loved the patients and desired above all things their happiness.

As to the gentleman who succeeds Dr. Babcock, we have nothing to say. He is a good man, a courageous man. But professionally he does not take such rank. He began to practice at the age of 40; he spent several years in politics; he has reached nearly 70 years of age—and as a general proposition we would say that he is absolutely lacking in the training, efficiency and natural gifts necessary to fill a place requiring so much diplomacy in the warring realm of the fevered human mind.

AS TO CIRCULATION

Our good neighbor the Newberry Observer puffeth itself up too much. Mr. Wallace, the editor of that paper, is a good man. And why should he not be? He has assumed unto himself the right and place to criticize his fellow editors. He, of course, makes no errors.

But there is one time when he claims a slip of the pen. When he claims to have the largest circulation of all the semi-weeklies in the state, he either spoke without thinking or is guilty of an offense as terrible as some of those awful things that he alleges against some of his brother editors. As for circulation, the semi-weekly edition of The Anderson Intelligencer has just about twice as many subscribers as Mr. Wallace has unless he has more than doubled his former subscription list.

And with reference to our semi-weekly, we will state that its publication will be resumed Friday. We have been sending the daily to the subscribers until we can get the permits from the postoffice department to return regularly to the publication of the semi-weekly, as distinctive from our daily, which is a live, healthy infant, thank you.

DRAIN THE SWAMP

We trust that at the meeting Saturday at the Chamber of Commerce rooms all opposition to draining the meadows of Rocky river will once and forever be laid aside. This proposition in the hands of a skillful engineer and good men will be the making of several hundred acres of productive soil, and the adding of thousands of dollars to the revenues of the county. It will also add a great deal to the healthfulness of the county as a whole and in that way a great help to the whole people. Let the work be pushed through.

We are pleased to hear of the improvement in the condition of W. R. Osborne. He has been misled, in the store, at the Chamber of Commerce councils, and at the church. A good citizen he is.

All roads to Washington should lead through Anderson.

Senator Tillman's Frankness. Philadelphia Inquirer.
A statesman's life, says Tillman, is one succession of banquets, receptions and other society's functions. Tillman is more frank than a lot of 'em who come back assuming a drawn look and complaining that life in the capital is nothing but one steady grind in the interest of constituents.

NEAL'S CREEK NEWS.

Belton, March 18.—A large number of people attended Sunday school here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. E. C. Martin and family have moved out of the community. They now reside at Nalley's crossing. We regret the loss of these good neighbors, and wish for them success and happiness in their new home. Mr. Charlie Cobb and family of Anderson have moved into the home vacated by Mr. Martin. We extend to them a warm welcome.

Mrs. Lettie Shirley has returned home after an absence of several weeks on a visit to her son, Mr. Thomas Shirley of Belton.

Mrs. John Major and Miss Lucile Haynie have been under the care of a physician, but it is hoped they will soon be restored to their usual health. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Shirley spent Sunday at Belton with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Major.

Miss Ouda Major spent the weekend here with her parents. Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Mann have returned home, having spent the past week with relatives and friends in the Whitefield section.

Every farmer with whom I have talked complains of the scarcity of pigs, and those that can be bought are bringing fancy prices. These conditions are not confined to Anderson county.

It is hoped that our farmers will this year plant more corn, less cotton and raise more hogs and cattle, both of which are becoming scarce.

Mr. Samuel Cobb of Kentucky is here on a visit to his brother, Mr. Charlie Cobb.

Misses Bessie and Cora Wilson of Septs are spending this week with their cousin, Miss Genie Erskine. Miss Sallie Thompson spent the week-end with her parents near Lebanon.

Mr. Pearson and his sister of Toxaway visited the family of Mr. Charlie Cobb Sunday.

Mr. C. F. Martin and his son, Willis, spent Monday at Townville.

AGAIN THE TROLLEY

The Press and Banner is anxious to hear from our neighbors the Intelligencer and the Daily Mail touching the assessment laid on Anderson—$200,000—to build the trolley.

Comparing the sizes of Abbeville and Anderson counties and especially of the two cities, $200,000 for Anderson and $100,000 for Abbeville is in about the right proportion. This we believe our neighbors will not deny. Then so much being granted we issue this challenge to our neighbor: If Anderson will signify her willingness to subscribe $200,000 to the trolley, Abbeville will subscribe $100,000, and will do it within the next thirty days. Once which amounts have been subscribed, Anderson and Abbeville will not be slow to come up with their assessments. This would give us about $450,000, this side of Augusta, which with Augusta's subscription, say not less than $500,000, would secure the road.

The people all along the line are ready enough to subscribe to the undertaking with the strong assurance of success but they are not willing to subscribe a small amount to be frittered away in surbseys, without this assurance of ultimate success. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars subscribed with a bond issue for a like amount will build and equip the road. Anderson and Abbeville should get together on the proposition and set the pace. The rest is easy.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Concerning the Sunday School Institute at Prospect March 23.

The churches that have not as yet selected messengers to the Sunday school institute which will be held with the New Prospect Baptist church on March 23 and 24 should do so Sunday and then send their names to L. T. Campbell, Anderson, R. F. D. in order that everything may be well in hand for the meeting.

We are expecting a great meeting and in order for it to be great it will take all the other churches of this association as well as the Prospect church.

Don't forget if you are a messenger or a speaker, if it is not convenient for you to furnish your own conveyance to state that you will need to be met at Anderson stating the time you will arrive.

Prospect is about six miles out from Anderson. We don't aim to fall down on our part if possible don't fall down on yours.

THIRTEEN MISTAKE OF LIFE

Philadelphia Ledger.
Here are what President Judge Paul J. McCord has announced as "13 Mistakes of Life."

To attempt to get up your own standard of right and wrong.
To try to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.
To expect automatically 12 opinions in this world.
To fail to make allowances for imperfections.
To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
Not to yield in unimportant trifles.
To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

Not to help everybody, wherever, however, and whenever we can.

To consider anything impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.

To believe only what our infinite minds can grasp.

Not to make allowances for the weakness of others.

To estimate by some outside quality, when it is that within which makes the man.

The coming of the G. S. & A. into this territory has made the steam roads all up all night and listen. Witness the scramble for the case at Atlanta. This never would have happened but for the competition.

CALHOUN FALLS

Calhoun Falls, March 18.—Rev. B. F. Halford, pastor of the Baptist church, has returned from a visit to his family in Walterboro.

We are pleased to learn that the infant son of R. P. Martin is convalescing from a prolonged attack of pneumonia.

Mr. W. F. Smith, who for some time has been the efficient and able agent of the Spaboard at this place, is preparing to move his family to Pell City, Ala., where he has accepted another position with the railroad. Their many friends here regret very much to see them leave.

Mr. J. M. Lawson, county superintendent of education, visited his brother Mr. H. W. Lawson Sunday and Monday.

The newly elected deacons, Messrs R. S. B. Martin, M. L. Dove and F. B. Milford were ordained at the Baptist church Monday night.

Mr. Broadwell attended services and assisted in the ordination of the new deacons.

Mr. Pharr filled his usual appointment at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon.

Mr. T. C. Burford of Atlanta, Ga., visited his mother, Mrs. D. Burford Sunday.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. W. J. Tucker is rapidly improving from the effects of an operation she underwent recently.

Dr. J. V. Tate is still laid up from the effects of a recent accident in which he was thrown from his buggy and his shoulder dislocated.

Mrs. John G. Carlisle is visiting her husband who is manager of the Calhoun lands.

The new brick stores which are being constructed by Messrs W. J. Tucker and J. J. George, are nearing completion.

Mrs. N. J. Tucker is visiting her daughter Mrs. J. B. G. Campbell in Columbia.

The W. M. N. held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. W. P. Castlebury Monday afternoon.

"Cease Firing."

Confederate Veteran.
The beautiful lines quoted in the Intelligencer by Ransom Post G. A. R. published in The Veteran February, were written by Maj. William M. Pagram, of Baltimore, Md., in 1875, at the request of Col. Harrison Adreon, a prominent Federal officer during the war who wanted something that would arouse better feeling in some members of the Post who opposed decorating the Confederate monument at Loudon Park as a reciprocal courtesy to the 5th Maryland Regiment, National Guard.

In compliance with this request, Major Pagram wrote the verse, which is the complete poem, and it has been extensively copied and used by patriotic organizations, and especially in the north. An article about this appeared in The Veteran for October, 1899, and it is a beautiful poem. Major Pagram calls attention to the omission of the word "here" in the first line; so the correct version is given: Cease firing! There are here no foes to fight;

Grim war is o'er and smiling peace now reigns.
Cease useless strife No matter who was right,
True magnanimity from hate abstains
Cease firing!"

LIFE OF SERVICE ENDED.

Mrs. Louise R. Norris, Mother of Mrs. Foster Fant of Anderson.

Columbia State (Tuesday).
Mrs. Louise R. Norris, relict of the late Rev. A. Pope Norris, died yesterday morning at the home of her nephew P. N. Timmerman, 1015 Henderson street.

A host of relatives and friends in many parts of South Carolina and elsewhere will be saddened by the death of this estimable woman, who had reached a mature age and whose long life was one of unselfish devotion to the pleasures and happiness of others. Her gentle-Christian character and her intelligent and sympathetic interest in all those with whom she came in contact endeared her to a long list of friends in this city, which was her home during the latter years of her life. Her late husband was a well known minister of the Baptist church, serving many churches in South Carolina.

Mrs. Norris is survived by three daughters, Miss Georgia Norris of the faculty of the Greenville Female College, Miss Louise R. Norris of Columbia and Mrs. Foster Fant of Anderson, by one son, James P. Norris of Columbia; by two orphaned grandchildren, Kirk Robinson of Greenville and Mrs. Louise R. Robinson of Birmingham; and by two half-brothers, Dr. W. T. Brooker of Swannock and N. W. Brooker of Columbia. She was a sister of the late Judge James Head of Louisiana and of the late Mrs. Georgia E. Timmerman of Ridge Spring.

The funeral services will be held from 1015 Henderson street this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.
